WRESTING THE MOMENT

Last spring the Artists' Association of Punjab completed 25 year since its foundation. Today another year seem to have elapsed in a blink. Life and the world we live in have a strange way of imperceptibly moving on. This is also true of human accomplishments that in due course of time ultimately absorbed in collective mainstream. There is nothing permanent except change. There is nothing universal, except the 'local spirit' that aspires for immortality.

Events and circumstances of our particular locality induce us to ponder, think and act. They impel us to reveal our respective self on paper or canvas, or collectively on the street. Our locality and neighbourhood today is in a state of great stress and turmoil. Essential issues concerning our material and cultural well-being have been challenged. The metaphysical, political and aesthetic vision of our self, society and world is being violently up rooted and plundered. Our country is torn by internal strife nurturing brutal insanity, which has encouraged criminals within and imperialist aggressors from abroad to fearlessly advance their material and strategic interest to our collective undoing. What is to be done? The world is watching events, being enacted on our stage indirectly through the media, We in comparison have the sad and tragic 'privilege' to have reserved seats in the front row. In fact - we may deny or may not be aware - but we are actually part of the cast of the script that is unfolding before us.

This is a historic moment for us to play our part; and we must play it well. Ironically it is a unique situation where the actors have to write their own lines and plot their own moves. If writers, poets, painters and other artists wrest this moment they could trigger off an art and cultural movement that may not be for long surpassed in our times. It is needless to add that all artists must individually internalise the tragic spectacle and find their own particular manner to express it. It would be dreadful if the present is allowed to slip away. Otherwise, whatever else may happens, surely morally and culturally we will implode revert to traditional platitudes, cosmetic solutions, market values and moral impotence. Art at its best will art of Fifty, Fifty. But let's at least cease dreaming and groping in darkness.
